Summary

Demantra BI project was developed for a leading software development organization. Oracle's Demantra Demand Management helps maximize the profitability with superior capabilities to better sense, shape, and respond to demand. This project was limited to shifting the source data platform that ensures least point of failures and automated alert mechanism to identify the failures.

Challenges

- The organization recently changed their forecasting platform from Oracle Demand Planner to Demantra. Demantra BI project is not only limited to shifting the source data platform.
- This project hands over the power of intelligence to business users ensuring least point of failures and automated alert mechanism to identify the failures.
- This project evicts dependency on many intermediate dependencies.

Solution

- We redesigned overused and oversized fact tables to aggregate tables to ensure the better performance.
- Reused instead of recreating objects and keeping our solution agile and a cost effective affair in terms of database and file systems.
- Demantra BI was a chance to bring in all the best practices into place like using proper levels of dimension hierarchies.
- Defining the logical and physical model such a way that star schemas are used instead of snowflake as much as possible.

Results

- 25% reduction in dependencies.
- 30% re-utilization of resources.
- 300% improved performance for all applications.
